"If to be observed by an entire continent be a source of pride, the people of Ohio should be very proud to-day, because the eyes of every state in the Union are upon them, and the action of the people of Ohio on Tuesday mext is awaited with deep solicited through-out the length and breadth of the nation. Ohio s now the only state that votes in Oct. ber. The average degree of republican lead in the country is to be tested by your vote, and your yote will be taken as an index to the vote of country is to be tested by your vote, and your vote will be taken as an index to the vote of November. So youly mission therefore, is to urge upon you the importance of your action on Tuesday next, and to ask you if you are ready for it. (cries of yes, yes, appliance and cheers) For the first time in forty years, for the first time since 1814, when Mr. Clay and Mr. Polk were the nominees of the two great parties, the tariff for protection becomes, from the very first day of the campaign, a subject for popular discussion. The discussion is well nigh closed, and the question is to be submitted to a jury of eight hundred thousand votes in your state, and as that jury may decide, such will be the fate of protective tariff in this country for a generation. It is too late new to go into any elaboration of argument. Action is the word. Action is your duty. I refrain from doing more, therefore, than to remind you that in all critical elections of past, unless the crisis of '63 and '64 be exception, never has a more weighty or more far reaching responsibility devolved two the process of the country localisation of the process of the campaign. more weighty or more far reaching responsi-bility devolved upon the people of Ohio than that which they will neet on Tuesday next and meeting which I hope and believe they will fully and faithfully discharge." AT CHILICOTHE. Poarsmouth, Ohio, October 10.—The reception at Chilicoths was elaborate and artistic. The approach to the stand was through an aveaue between parallel lines of uniformed horsemen. At the upper end of this avenue were two rows of girls dressed in white, representing the states of the Union, and holding up a series of green arches, through which Blaine passed. In the afternoon he took a drive through the suburbs and received calls, but made us address. Senator Bayard, of Delaware, Judge Thurman and General Rosecraus are also in the city to attend the meeting at night. Senator Bayard visited the chamber of commerce and made a brief speech to the effect that he had found in the public life great help in the business education he received when a youth.

At night all these gentlemen were driven to Music hall and found it almost impossible to enter so great was the throug. As Hendricks made his way through the throng on to the stare and appeared at the speaker's desk the entire mass of people rose to its feet and entire mass of people rose to its feet and cheered again and again, waved hats and handkerchiefs, and shouted for Cleveland and handkerchiefs, and shouted for Cleveland and Hendricks. Similar demonstrations of less intensity marked the appearance of General Rosecrans, Senator Bayard, Judge Thurman and Senator Pendleton. M. E. Ingalis, president of the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St Louis & Chicago railroad, called the meeting to order and introduced Senator Pendleton as the latter then in a very few words introduced Hendricks, who, after a repet tion of the demonstration made when he eatered the hall, began his speech by saying:

The election next Tuesday isof great importance on account of the effices to be filled, but more especially because of the influences they will have on all the states at the November election. He therefore appealed to Ohio to give all proper consideration to this election. The selection in November was not only the choice of men, but a decision of national policy. That decision would turn not only on the man presented, but on the policies and principles represented. He then proceeded to argue that there should be a change in the administration of the government and gave among the reasons, the concessions in the republican platform that tariff was laid unequally and that more revenue was collected than was necessary for the conomical administration of the government. If only the choice of men, but a decision of antional policy. That decision would turn not only on the man presented, but on the policies and principles represented. He then proceeded to argue that there should be a change in the administration of the government and gave among the reasons, the concessions in the republican platform that tariff was laid unequally and that more revenue was collected than was necessary for the economical administration of the government. If these faults were conceded by the party which has been in power nearly a quarter of a ceutury, he asserted there should be a change, so that a remedy could be applied. In proof of the admission by republicans of the existence of an excessive revenue, he cited Fresidens Arthur's message two years ago, when Arthur called the attention of constructions. LONDON, October 10. - Mr. Joy, president of the Wabash road, at a meeting of bond-law said the peril of that road was lation. The revenue law was modified but not law as and now the excess of revenue, ause 1 by acquiring more lines than the road sufficiently, and now the excess of revenue above the requirements of an economical administration was $85,000,000 annually. This sum was improperly deprived from the business uses of the country, and the government com-pelled to build expensive vaults for its storage the asked if the republican party under this condition of affairs, had a right to ask for contincondition of affairs, had a right to ask for contin-uance in office. [Cries of "no, no."] Four years ago, he said, times were fairly good. Fair prices were obtained for products and fair wages for labor. The republican orators said, "Let well enough alone," and we were not able to answer that short but powerful argu-ment. Do they say so now! When wheat is 50 cents a bushel lower than it was then, when men are everywhere seeking employment, and after finding it at reduced wages. When times port, submitted to-day, is the enormous magnitude of our internal commerce. It is shown ment is, "Let there be a change, that times may be better. Victims of the Wholesale Tragedy, special to the St. Paul Pioneer Press,

Pioneer Press tells of the murder of our form er townspeople, Mr. Percival, wife and child, the wife being so well known as the daughter of Rev. G. C. Tanner, pastor of the Episcopal church of this city and superintendent of ounty schools, created the most profound sensation ever experienced in Owatonna. The sensation ever experienced in Owatonna. The whole community is in sympathy with the afficted parent. Mr. Tanner has gone to Nebraska for the remains of his daughter.

Owatonna October 8—A letter just received from Rev. Mr. Tanner, father of the murdered Mrs. Perceval, dated Fullerton, Neb-, October 7, gives in a clear and concise manner the facts of the terrible tragedy as developed before the coroner's jury. This testimony, while it affords no real clew to the perpetrators of the crime, seems to point to Furnival as the author of it all. The facts, somewhat problematic, are as follows: Sunday, what problematic, are as follows: Sunday Furnival and Mair were at Edmonson's. Furnival and Mair were at Edmonson's, a neighbor of Perceval's, on good terms. Sunday night, or Monday early, Mair, who lived with Furnival was shot in the head. On Monday Baird, who lived at Perceval's, was either passing the creek or enticed there and shot, and put into a pool Mrs. Perceval and baby were shot in bed after retiring. Mr. Perceval got home from Fullerton about 10 p. m., entered the house, put some articles in the baby's crib, went out and put up his team, went to the haystack and was shot twice. The house at present is locked and the keys are thrown away. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Perceval and the babe are buried near the house and will probably be brought to Owatonna for burial. The statement that Mrs. Perceval was outraged was incorrect. She and the was outraged was incorrect. She and the babe were shot after retiring. The lady's sil ver and jewelry, which were supposed to have been taken, are safe at Fullerton.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press says: G. H. I went to Owatonna in this state, at once, where I met Percival, Furnival and Baird, all engaged as I was, in farming, and all from England. Baird was a quiet, delicate-looking young fellow of perhaps nineteen or twenty years, and with a habit of avoiding straightforward glances that is not prepossessing.
